Three Expeditions Leave For Central America To Explore Ancient Ruins

New Orleans, Jan. 8. (AP)—New Orleans today was archaeological headquarters of the United States for the day with three expeditions here ready to said for Central America.

An expedition to sail for Yucatan tomorrow includes Dr. Herbert J. Spinden, assistant curator of the Peabody Museum of Harvard University; Gregory Mason, former editor of The Outlook; Ogden Trevor McClung, Chicago, and Frank Whiting, Darien, Conn.

Prof. E. H. Morris and Dr. G. G. Richerson, of the Carnegie Institute are on their way to the Republic of Guatemala to explore the ruins of Oaxactun and Petan; and Prof. G. J. Record of the Yale University tropical forestry department was ready to go on an expedition into Central America for Yale.

All were to be guests of Tulane University at luncheon and dinner.

The Mason-Spinden expedition will seek a great buried city of the ancient Mayas in Yucatan believed to be rich in ruins and inscriptions throwing light on a race whose history is believed to date back centuries before Christ.

Dr. Frank Blom, who headed a Tulane expedition among the buried Mayan cities last summer, breakfasted with Dr. Spinden and Mr. Mason today.

Dr. Spinden was deprecatory of "hero stories" following announcement of his expedition. "I don't know of any place you can go, outside of New York, where your chances of living don't go up unless it's on a trip to Chicago," he said. "All this stuff about penetrating trackless jungles amid hostile Indians is inaccurate and does no possible good. It does us incalculable harm with the authorities of the countries where we are going."

"The real foundation of archaeology in Central America is American chewing gum," said Mr. Mason. "If it were not for the trails in land beaten by the Indian carriers of chicle, it would have been a much longer time before we heard of the size and scope of the buried Mayan cities of ancient ruins."

The expedition will not do excavating—merely preliminary exploration work without digging. At Belize, British Honduras, the party will board a steamer, now waiting under charter, for exploration along the east coast of the peninsula of Yucatan.

TURKS RIDICULE AMERICA'S STAND

Cartoon and Editorial Criticise Failure to Ratify Lausanne Treaty

Constantinople, Jan. 8. (AP)—An explanation of the status of the Lausanne treaty in the United States senate, issued by the American high commissioner, Admiral Mark L. Bristol, draws a cartoon and editorial today from the newspaper Republic.

Picturing Uncle Sam in an attitude of self satisfaction, with his thumbs in vest, and feet on the table, the paper prints a lengthy criticism of America's failure to ratify the treaty which was signed in July, 1923.

"Admiral Bristol's explanation contains nothing positive," the writer says. "It merely confirms that Uncle Sam has a full stomach and plenty of money and is therefore in no hurry to make peace with us. England, who was our greatest enemy, has ratified Lausanne, but America, against whom we did not even declare war, refuses.

"We do not believe Uncle Sam's protestations of democracy, and pacifism. If he rejects this treaty and thinks we will make another against our interests, he shows that he still misunderstands Turkey.

"America's ignorance of Eastern affairs is proverbial, but Uncle Sam's attitude toward us in this affair is the limit."

FOUR BANDITS ESCAPE WITH LOOT FROM BANK

Lipan, Texas, an. 8, (AP)—Four bandits in a daylight robbery here today looted the First National bank of an undetermined sum at the point of pistols and made their escape in an automobile, exchanging a running fire with L. J. Blair, justice of the peace, who attempted to overtake them. Blair's pursuit of the robbers was stopped by a load of shot evidently from a hunting gun fired at such a distance that he was not seriously injured by the pellets. Firing in return, Blair broke the rear glass in the fleeing car.

The bank vault and cashier's till were rifled after Cashier Claud [illegible] had been stood against the wall. Roy Simmons, another employe, was compelled to lie face downward, and Norman Hunt made to show where the money was kept in the vault.

A pursuit was organized this afternoon.

DEVASTATING FLOODS ARE RAGING IN MEXICO

Los Angeles, Jan. 8, (AP)—Special dispatches to the Los Angeles Times say that devastating floods are sweeping the Santiago Ixcuintia district, State of Nayarit, Mexico.

The governor of Nayarit in a telegram to the State's deputies in Mexico City is described as estimating the loss of life at 500 and the property damage at 3,000,000 pesos. Some villages are reported to have been destroyed. Rail communications have been cut.

The dispatches also say messages from Durango report that crops have been destroyed and that many miles of countryside are under water as the result of three days of torrential rains. Rivers have reached a height of some five feet above their normal levels.

Professor Asserts Apostle Paul Had Real Stenographer

hicago, Jan. 8.(AP)—The Apostle Paul had a stenographer who took down his letters in shorthand, Henry O. Lloyd of the University of Chicago declared in a thesis today. This fact, he said, was revealed through recent studies of the Greek papyri bearing the original scriptures.

That the writing in shorthand in those days was a definitely established trade is shown in Mr. Lloyd's thesis through a contract of 155 A. D. in which an ex-magistrate of Oxyphynchus apprentices his slave to a shorthand writer. The form of the writing is not clear. However, the principle of abbreviation was used, which has complicated the work of modern translators considerably.

LAWRENCE DIES STILL CLAIMING INNOCENCE

Arizona State Prison, Florence, Ariz., Jan. 8, (AP)—William A. Lawrence, 27, of Muskogee, Ok., was hanged at 5:22 a. m. here today for the murder of a Phoenix, Ariz., policeman.

He was pronounced dead nine and a half minutes later.

Before stepping on the trap, Lawrence made a short statement declaring he was "not guilty" and then asked several people who were present to witness the execution to kneel with him in a seven-minute silent prayer.

The warden of the prison said Lawrence was the bravest man he had ever seen go to the gallows.

Until a few minutes before going to the death chamber, Lawrence remained in his cell, playing a guitar and singing a Spanish love song.

SARGENT BEFORE ALUMINUM PROBE

Says Trade Commission Refused to Give Justice Department Facts Learned

Washington, Jan. 8. (AP)—Attorney General Sargent indicated today to a senate investigating committee that the department of justice had not undertaken to compel the Federal Trade Commission to furnish information obtained from the Aluminum Company, of America, which the commission decided to hold as confidential.

Mr. Sargent called as the first witness in the senate inquiry as to any failure of the justice department to bring contempt proceedings against this company in which Secretary Mellon is a stockholder and which was charged in 1924 by the Trade Commission with violations of a Federal court contempt decree entered in 1912.

"Is there any way the department of justice can get from the Federal Trade Commission information received from the company?" asked Senator Borah, republican of Idaho.

"I don't know," returned Mr. Sargent. "I don't think that has ever been tested out."

Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, chief prosecutor in the inquiry, read into the record minutes of the Federal Trade Commission which he contended showed the commission had decided to withhold from the justice department not only evidence otained from the company in confidence but also all information from the company.

Mr. Sargent was called primarily to deal with the phase of the committee's inquiry having to do with any delay in bringing contempt proceedings. He was questioned more than an hour, frequently in a sharp manner, and his examination had not been concluded when the inquiry was adjourned until tomorrow.

Charleston Menace to Very Foundation Dallas Apartments

Dallas, Jan. 8, (AP)—The Charleston dance craze here has resulted in an appeal to the city building inspector to inspect an apartment house to see if it is built sufficiently strong to stand the strain. The owner said a dancing party was given on the second floor of the building. The entertainment not only jarred plaster from the ceilings of rooms below but shook the house to such an extent that the owner believed the foundation was threatened.

TELE-TYPEWRITER IS LATEST NEWS SENDER

Dallas, Jan. 8. (AP)—A man sitting at a keyboard in Kansas City writes news on typewriters in Texas in a mechanical transmission system put in operation today by the Associated Press on one of its leased wires connecting Dalas, Fort Worth, Houston and San Antonio with Kansas City. The system is of the latest type and an improvement over one formerly used in Texas.

Mechanical typewriters in each of the Texas cities, responding to telegraphic impulses from the dispatching keyboard grond out news "copy" at the rate of 60 words a minute, neatly typed and ready for the editors.

The average speed of telegraph operators is 35 words a minute. Each of the papers served had two "printers," one available at the touch of a button for emergency use.

New Thermometer Nearly Double in Degree Register

Lynn, Mass., Jan. 8, (AP)—A thermometer capable of registering a temperature of more than 1,800 degrees Fahrenheit has been developed in the Thomson research laboratory of the General Electric company here, it was announced today. Instead of glass, which would melt at a much lower temperature, fused quartz was used for the stem of the instrument. Mercury, which would boil and explode at such a heat, was eliminated and galliun, one of the rarer metals, was used.

A temperature of 1,000 degres Fahrenheit is the maximum which the mercury-in-glass thermometers can stand and such thermometers are inaccurate at high temperatures, scientists assert.

Osage Revelations To Astound Nation

HAD BECOME REAL REIGN OF TERROR

Many Indians Burned Brilliant Lights Around Homes All Night

Guthrie, Okla., Jan. 7. (AP)—The U. S. government's investigation of an alleged conspiracy in the Osage country of Oklahoma has revealed a condition that will astound the nation when the details are known it was declared today by Edwin K. Brown, special assistant attorney general, who, with Roy Lewis, Federal district attorney, is directing a grand jury inquiry here.

"Before this probe is completed the entire United States will be astounded by the revelations," he said. "Nothing so far reaching has ever before been revealed."

Mr. Brown said that so real had become a reign of terror in the Osage country, as the result of the death of nearly a score of persons, that when he went there several months ago to begin investigation he found the homes of many Osages surrounded by strings of brilliant electric lights that burned constantly throughout the night.

It was indicated officially today, however, that the grand jury's efforts have been so sucessful so far that the government expects the Osages to be protected hereafter from the cupidity of white men which it is charged revealed itself through many devious methods to defraud, and finally cropped out in a sinister conspiracy of death that levied the lives of the Indians known as the world's wealthiest people.

Witnesses called today indicated that the grand jury finished late in the afternoon its investigation of the death of Anna Brown, wealthy Osage who was the first victim of the alleged conspiracy, and turned its attention to the death of Henry Roan, Anna Brown's cousin.

The battered skull of Anna Brown, first victim of an alleged death ring in the Osage country, was taken today before the United States grand jury here.

Simultaneously it was announced by Edwin Brown, assistant United States attorney general who is in charge of the grand jury, that liquor is being given Indians, brought from their restricted lands to tell what they know of the death shadow that seemingly has hovered over some of their people.

The grand jury is trying to determine the truth of rumors long forming, that a powerful conspiracy to obtain Indian money to the extent of about $2,000,000 was responsible for the series of nearly twenty deaths.

No arrests have been made on charges of intoxicaation among witnesses, Mr. Brown said, but several Osages have been under the influence of liquor and it is feared their testimony might be affected.

Mr. Brown has requested Federal agents to keep a sharp lookout for liquor and to arrest any one responsible for distributing it among the Indians.

SNOW WHICH DELIGHTED WEST HEADED THIS WAY

Dallas, Jan. 8, (AP)—General snows throughout Northeast and West Texas which made farmers and stockmen jubilant yesterday were driven slowly into North and Central Texas last night and today. The cold wave extended to the Mexican border where Del Rio experienced a minimum temperature of 30 degrees last night. Milder weather prevailed in the interior of the state, however, the temperatures ranging from 24 degrees at Amarillo to 42 at Galveston. Taylor was the southernmost point receiving snow this morning, while Waco was blanketed last night. Snow began falling at Dallas at daybreak, melting as it fell.

Snow was falling at Fort Worth today with the temperature around freezing.

Clear skies prevailed in the Rio Grande valley today from El Paso south to Brownsville and east as far as Corpus Christi.

Fair weather with continued cold was forecast for the state generally tonight and tomorrow, with freezing weather extending nearly to the coast.

Early morning temperatrues were Dallas 31, Taylor 32, Abilene 26 and Houston 36.

SUPERFICIAL REMEDIES IN PAST BLAMED FOR CRIMES

Boston, Jan. 8, (AP)—Dean Roscoe Pound of the Harvard law school, believes part of the blame for the present crime wave rests with the application of superficial remedies in the past.

In an address before the Massachusetts Bankers association last night, he declared present conditions were only temporary, and saw no reason to be alarmed over them.

"Such conditions have recurred in many periods of the world's history," he said. "Whenever there has been a period of transition or social change it has carried with it a disrespect for law. Today we spend too much time whizzing around on wheels instead of sitting in our homes; thousands of us are living in apartments; population has shifted from the country to the cities, and these social changes are bound to have and are having a great effect.

"The whole machinery for maintaining law and order not only antedates the motor vehicle, but functions from a rural and agricultural viewpoint."

STORAGE ROOMS OF DRUG STORE ARE BURGLARIZED

Dallas, Jan. 8, (AP)—Morphine worth $2,500 at drug peddlers' prices, and razor blades valued at $500 were stolen by burglars who Wednesday night broke into the store rooms of the Greiner-Kelly Drug company, 1112 Jackson street.

The burglars obtained forty-one bottles containing one-eighth of an ounce of morphine and four cases of razor blades. A rear window of the store room was broken open to gain entrance.

Second Broadside Fired Preliminary to the Next Presidential Campaign

Chicago, Jan. 7. (AP)—The second democratic broadside was fired here preliminary to the next presidential campaign, at a Jackson Day dinner tonight when Governor Albert C. Ritchie, of Maryland, said in an address that the preservation of liberty is more important than such questions as the world court, tariff or disarmament. Governor Al Smith of New York, fired the opening shot in the preliminary skirmishing here early last fall.

Decentralization of the Federal government and restitution to the States of inherent rights was the theme of Governor Ritchie's address.

"A democratic anniversary such as this calls for a democratic message in the language of democrats."

"It concerns the rights of individual citizens and the powers of the government, and the place and function of local government as contrasted with the national government."

He deprecated centralization in the Federal government as the "instrument of leagues, groups and militant minorities."

He referred to adoption of the Bill of Rights as marking the "first political activity of that element in the nation which to this day constitutes the democratic party."

He listed five of the ten amendments "essential to the personal liberty" as destroyed; the right of free speech and peacable assembly; the guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures; the guarantee against double jeopardy and against compulsion to be a witness against one's self in a criminal case; the right to a jury trial in the State or district where the crime was committed; and the reservation to the States of all powers not delegated to the United States not prohibited to the States.

"Thus five of the principal immunities guaranteed by the bill of rights have been stricken down one by one, with the result that people everywhere are in revolt against the increasing extravagances of Federal regulation and subject to control by a bureau at Washington and constant invasion by some Federal agent, investigator or inspector.

"There are other issues but none affects the preservation of liberty so much as the proper distribution of powers between the State and the Union," he asserted.

Chief Evening Star Is Fire Eater and He Tells It Scary

San Antonio, Jan. 8 (AP)—Chief Evening Star, an Oklahoma Indian who demonstrated he can bite his nose, and chew lighted cigarettes and matches, is a guest at the county jail.

The Indian came here a few days ago from El Paso and was picked up by military police as an expected deserter. Investigation showed that he had not been in the army and so he was turned over to Sheriff Stevens who will release him if he obtains employment.

The chief declared one of his favorite stunts is to dance in a tub of blazing gasoline, and that snake heads satiate his hunger and gasoline quenches his thirst.

VESUVIUS STILL VIOLENT BUT DIMINISHING FORCE

Naples, Jan. 8, (AP)—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius, which began with violence on Wednesday, is continuing. The internal rumblings, however, are constantly diminishing in force indicating, according to volcanologists, a speedy termination of the phenomenon.

The crater last night presented a fantastic spectacle, projecting a huge umbrella-shaped cloud of smoke, the under surface of which was radiantly red and the upper port lost in obscurity. Large incandescent cinders constantly sailed upward from the crater and disappeared into the smoke.

The molten lava, which has been flowing plentifully, is beginning to harden, building up again the crater formation which was torn away in the eruption of 1905. The director of the Vesuvius observatory is remaining at his post.

AIRPLANE WITH TWO MEN DROPS INTO ICY WATERS

Dupo, Ia. Jan. 8, (AP)—An army airplane carrying two persons fell into the icy waters of the Mississippi river here Thursday night, injuring one of the occupants.

The men had driven the plane to Rockwell Field, Cal., and were returning to Scott Field, Belleville, Ill. where they are stationed. Paisley the pilot, said the plane fell when the motor went dead. They were flying low. The plane was saved.

A relief party found three men dead on the floor of the camp. A fourth, taken to his home, fell dead in the kitchen. Searchers combed the woods for the missing survivor.

MUST PROMPTLY VALIDATE BONDS

Bankers of Texas Say No Time Should Be Lost by the State

Dallas, Jan. 8. (AP)—That prompt action to establish the validity of all Texas road district road bonds affected by the recent ruling of the supreme court of the United States in the Archer county case should be taken, is the opinion of bankers in leading Texas cities. This attitude of the bankers is indicated in responses to inquiries sent out by the Dallas News.

The decision of the court upheld the contention of the citizens of the road districts in Archer county who complained that the law under which the district was created was unconstitutional in that it provided no opportunity for a hearing as to the justice of taxation for road improvement.

Despite the expressed uneasiness in some financial circles that great sums would be lost to the holders of road bonds, the attorney general of Texas and leaders in Texas financial circles have declared that there is no danger of the State repudiating its obligations. The supreme court's ruling was based partly on the fact that the legislature, while authorizing the creation of special road districts, does not control them.

There is also uncertainty as to whether all special district road bonds of the State will be affected by the ruling or only those of the Archer county district.

There is talk of a special session of the legislatuce to untagle the situation.

WRECKED HYDROPLANE IS UNSOLVED MYSTERY

Atlantic City, Jan. 8, (AP)—Coast guard officials today wrestled with a mystery centering around a wrecked hydroplane picked up four days ago by the steamship Alegrete. The mystery is complicated by rumors of an impending rum invasion by air, a telephone message and some shooting.

Among reports along the Jersey coast was one that somewhere on the Atlantic today fifteen patrol boats were cruising to prevent a fleet of hydroplanes from landing liquor from rum row. No information concerning this reported strategy would be given, coast guard officials said, until details of the hydroplane wreck had been cleared up.

The wrecked plane is believed to be one in which Charles R. Warren of New York and George Hand left New York for Florida December 28. It put into this city last Saturday. Since then no direct word has come from the two aviators.

Three hours after the plane hopped off a telephone call from an unidentified person to the coast guard base said a seaplane which had left three hours before had failed to return on scheduled time. Search for the plane was made by coast guard vessels for three days without result.

On Saturday night after two men had been seen on a pier signaling, a seaplane was driven away by shots from a coast guard patrol boat.

Whether there is any connection between these occurrences is the question confronting the coast guard.

JURY RETURNS VERDICT NEGLIGENT HOMICIDE

The jury in the William Barnett case, charged with murder in connection with the death of a newborn infant found in the weeds in the rear of his premises, returned a verdict shortly after court opened at 9:30 o'clock Friday morning.

The jury found the defendant guilty of negligent homicide and assessed the penalty at twelve months confinement in the county jail.

The question of murder or negligent homicide was based on the issue as to whether the defendant thought the infant was dead when he carried it to the place where it was left. The evidence showed that it was alive when found and that it died after being taken to the hospital.

After the verdict was received in the Barnett case, Fred Leckeridge charged with liquor violation, who forfeited his bond and was brought back from Oklahoma by his bondsmen, entered a plea of guilty and asked for a suspended sentence.

The district attorney contested the application for a suspended sentence, but the jury assessed the penalty at five years in the penitentiary and recommended suspended sentence.

The trial of Leckeridge was before Judge Denton on account of Judge Blackburn being disqualified. This disposed of the last of the cases to be tried before Judge Denton and before leaving the court house he signed up the minutes of the cases tried before him during the term.

After Judge Denton vacated the bench Judge Blackburn took up the docket again.

Reuben Tumblin, negro, charged with theft of 800 pounds of seed cotton pleaded guilty and asked for suspended sentence. The jury gave him a straight sentence of two years in the pen.

Claude Porter, a negro woman living at Blossom, pleaded guilty to driving an auto while under the influence of liquor. She was arrested in December on the Pine Bluff road while driving with a negro man.

The case went to the jury a little after 4 o'clock and it failed to reach a verdict before bedtime.

GOT LETTER FROM CLIPPING BUREAU MAN

A few days ago The News gave an account of unexpected luck that W. P. Cooper, living two miles northwest of town, had in trapping for a hawk that killed his rooster and devoured part of it.

As was stated besides getting his revenge by catching and killing the hawk he caught a little striped skunk or civet cat, the hide of which was worth $3 and a big possum the hide of which was worth $2.

Mr. Cooper was in town Friday and stated that he had caught another civet cat and another possum in his trap.

The item that was published in The News about his trapping experience was reproduced in other papers, and Mr. Cooper stated that he received a letter from a clipping bureau man at Bartlett saying he had a number of clippings that he had collected in regard to his trapping and that if he would send him a quarter he would mail them to him.

TANK OF FUEL OIL RECEIVED AT COURTHOUSE

AMUSEMENTS

AT THE GRAND

"Stage Struck" the Allan Dwan production for Paramount which comes to the Grand next Monday and Tuesday, is a broad comedy with Gloria Swanson as a waitress in a small factory town on the Ohio river. She is smitten with Lawrence Gray, a pancake artist in the lunch room, who is fond of actresses.

To make a more favorable impression on the young fellow, Gloria is taking a correspondence school course in stage acting and is given a chance to show what she can do when one of the famous floating theaters which ply their way over the broad waters of the Ohio arrives in town.

The scenes that follow, in which Gloria clowns all over the sets in all sorts of get-ups, are said to be far up and beyond anything fans saw in "Manhandled," "The Humming Bird," "Zaza" or, for that matter, any of the star's previous pictures.

"Stage Struck" was written especially for Miss Swanson by Frank R. Adams.

NO IDLE LAND IN LAMAR COUNTY

There is a good deal of land being cleared in Lamar county, but it is nearly all in small bodies and the increase in acreage does not signify that a large acreage in cotton will be planted. There will not be any idle land in the county this year, as there has been quite a demand for land by farmers returning from the west and from drouth sufferers who moved in from other parts of the state.

Columbus, Ga.—Mrs. George S. Hunter, of this city, writes:

"After I married, thirteen months ago, I suffered with dreadful pains in my sides during ... My side hurt so bad it nearly killed me. I had to go to bed and stay sometimes two weeks at a time. I could not work and I just dragged around the house.

"I got very thin—I went from 126 pounds down to less than 100. My mother had long been a user of Cardui and she knew what a good medicine it was for this trouble, so she told me to get some and take it. I sent to the store after it and before I had taken the first bottle I began to improve.

"My side hurt less and I began to improve in health. ... The Cardui acted as a fine tonic and I do not feel like the same person. I am so much better. I am well now. I have gained ten pounds and am still gaining. My sides do not trouble me at all.

PARIS' LOCAL TRANSPORTATION

AS a growing city Paris has a local transportation problem demanding attention. Large sections of the city, a mile or more from the business center, are a quarter to a half mile—and in some instances even farther from a street car line. In three or four more years, with the present rate of growth, the frontiers of the city will be pushed out considerably farther, and yet not nearly so far as they would be if adequate transportation were afforded every residence section.

Growing industries and new industries require increasing numbers of workers. These workers must have living quarters and most of these living quarters in the future in Paris must be built up out beyond where people live now. Already there is a great need for street car expansion or bus lines to reach the new residence districts: the immediate future will call for still other extensions to care for districts yet to be promoted and settled.

Street car systems have built every city yet built in the United States, and local transportation lines will go on building cities.

People will walk a quarter of a mile to work. A great many will walk half a mile. But not many will walk a mile.

People will walk three or four blocks to the car line. A few will walk five or six blocks. But not many will walk eight or ten.

In undertaking the solution of the local transportation problem there is no need for excitement, nervousness or haste. It is a business proposition and needs to be handled in a business-like way. A survey of the city—what it's needs are now and what it's people may reasonably expect them to be—to find out just what would be wise in planning transportation facilities, is the first step, of course. This is a proper work for the Chamber of Commerce. Until that survey is made and reported, it would be idle for any citizen or groupof citizens to start any kind of agitation.

What each citizen must do now is to realize that Paris has a local transportation problem, that it will grow more insistent until it is solved, and that its solution must be approached and worked out along sound business lines for the greatest good of all the city.

Maybe it's the lack of a good five-cent cigar that has driven this generation to cigarets.

OPTIMISM PLUS SANITY

SECRETARY HOOVER says that American business can look forward with confidence to the year which has just begun. All the fundamental factors of continued prosperity are present, and the rest, as he points out, is largely a matter of psychology.

But he gives no counsel of headlong optimism. He advises, in fact, a "sprinkling of caution." No war was ever won by plunging blindly ahead, no career built up, no business prosperity obtained.

The outlook today, both at home and abroad, is more promising than it has been for many years. Peace and normality are beginning to assert themselves. A new era seems to be getting under way almost faster than it can be recorded. The United States is in a key position to have an ever larger share in its benefits.

But just as lack of confidence can affect business movements, too much of the same thing is certain to land us in a hole. Secretary Hoover states a well-tried principle when he points out that "overoptimism can only land us on the shores of overdepression." This is sane advice for American business. If it is followed, prosperity can forge ahead upon an even keel during 1926.

A MODEL CRIMINAL CODE

TWO of the professors of the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania, Dean Mikell and Dr. Keedy, have been selected by the American Law Institute to undertake the preparation of a model code of criminal procedure. This should serve as a guide to the States in framing legislation and aims to fill a long-felt need in our criminal jurisprudence. The work will be carried on in full co-operation with the National Crime Commission, of which both Dean Mikell and Dr. Keedy are members, and it is the opinion of William Draper Lewis, director of the institute, that such a code as is contemptlated will be the greatest contribution the legal profession can make in the war against crime.

In this connection it will be recalled that the Law Association of Philadelphia undertook, more than four years ago, at the request of the Judges of the Common Pleas Courts, to make "a thorough survey of all matters connected with the administration of criminal justice in Philadelphia" and to submit a report thereon to the Judges.

If any such report ever was made, the public has not heard of it. The Law Association was urged to make its survey along the lines of the Cleveland survey, and an offer of means to employ skilled investigators for the task was made and declined, the association preferring to refer the whole undertaking to a committee of busy lawyers.

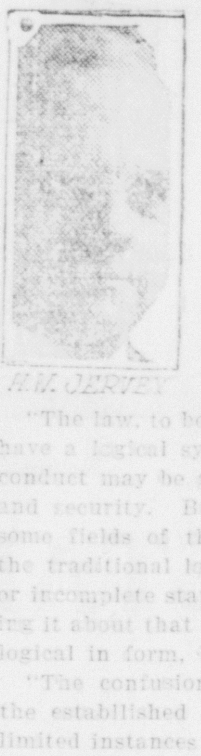
The result is what might have been expected. The late James Collins Jones devoted much time and research to the subject and conferences were held with various public officials. But thus far nothing apparently has been done to improve conditions with regard to the administration of criminal justice in the Philadeluphia courts. Perhaps the plan of the American Law Institute will show better results.

That once potent phrase "a living wage," now rests "in the full dinner pail" on an economic dump.

WORLD TOPICS

STUDY ACTUAL BEHAVIOR OF MEN

"THE law student of the future will be taught to study the behavior of men as well as the law of the centuries," predicted Dean Huger W. Jervey, dean of the law school of Columbia University, in his annual report to President Nicholas M. Butler.



H. W. JERVEY

"The attempt to get under and behind the applicable legal rule and to illuminate it by a study of the particular social or economomic phenomenon it purports to control through enlisting the special cooperation of the economist, the sociologist, the philosopher is indicative of the present-day attitude of our ablest legal scholars on the bench, at the bar and in the law school, toward the function and content of the law," Dean Jervey continued.

"The law, to be useful and certain and just, must have a logical symmetry of its own so that men's conduct may be guided with reasonable confidence and security. But the question is whether, in some fields of the law at least, the premises of the traditional logic system have not become false or incomplete statements in themselves, thus bringing it about that the consequent conclusion, though logical in form, bears no relation to reality.

"The confusion caused by the abandonment of the established or so-called logical rule in these limited instances where it shall clearly appear that the rule it not working well here and now would be a small price to pay for the law's readjustment to the realities around us. And surely in its last state it will be more certainly predicable, as well as reasonable, than in the first.

"The task of going on is plainly the task of the graduate schools and research scholars in our colleges of law. It is not proposed to construct any statement of society and law's present deficiency—such a statement might well be undesirable even if it were possible. Society changes as men write and the new and liberalizing truth of today may become the hampering dogma of tomorrow.

"The desirable thing to be achieved is spirit and method. To investigate some of the major fields and to do our bit toward reform where reform shall seem to be needed, but above all to infuse into our own thinking and the thinking of the men we school the penetrating understanding that our material for study is the actual behavior of men as well as the law reports that deal with that behavior—such an objective is quite ambitious enough."

THE BEST OF ADVICE

THE RIGHT KIND OF FRIENDS

THE adjective Chesterfieldian—sauve, polished—comes to us, you may or may not know, from Lord Chesterfield, English courtier and wit, who lived from 1694 to 1773. He has a place in posterity because of letters he wrote to his son, teaching and preaching the gospel of the graces.

The letters, now nearly 200 years old, are as pertinent today as they were the day he wrote them. Wisdom never dies.

One of them pertains to the matter of choosing one's friends:

"Dear Boy: People of your age have, commonly, an unguarded frankness about them which makes them the easy prey of the artful and experienced:

They look upon every knave or fool, who tells them he is their friend, to be really so;;

And pay that profession of simulated friendship with an indiscreet and unbounded confidence, always to their own loss, often to their ruin.

"Beware, therefore, now that you are coming into the world, of those proffered friendships. Receive them with civility, but with incredulity too; and pay them with compliments, but not with confidence.

"Do not make your vanity and self-love make you suppose that people become your friends at first sight, or even upon short acquaintance.

"Real friendship is a slow grower; and never thrives unless ingrafted upon a stock of known and reciprocal merit.

"There is another kind of nominal friendship among young people, which is warm for the time, but by good luck, of short duration. This friendship is hastily produced, by their being accidentally thrown together—they tell one another all they know, and often more too, when, of a sudden, some accident disperses them, and think no more of each other unless it be to betray and laugh at their unprudent confidence.

* * * * *

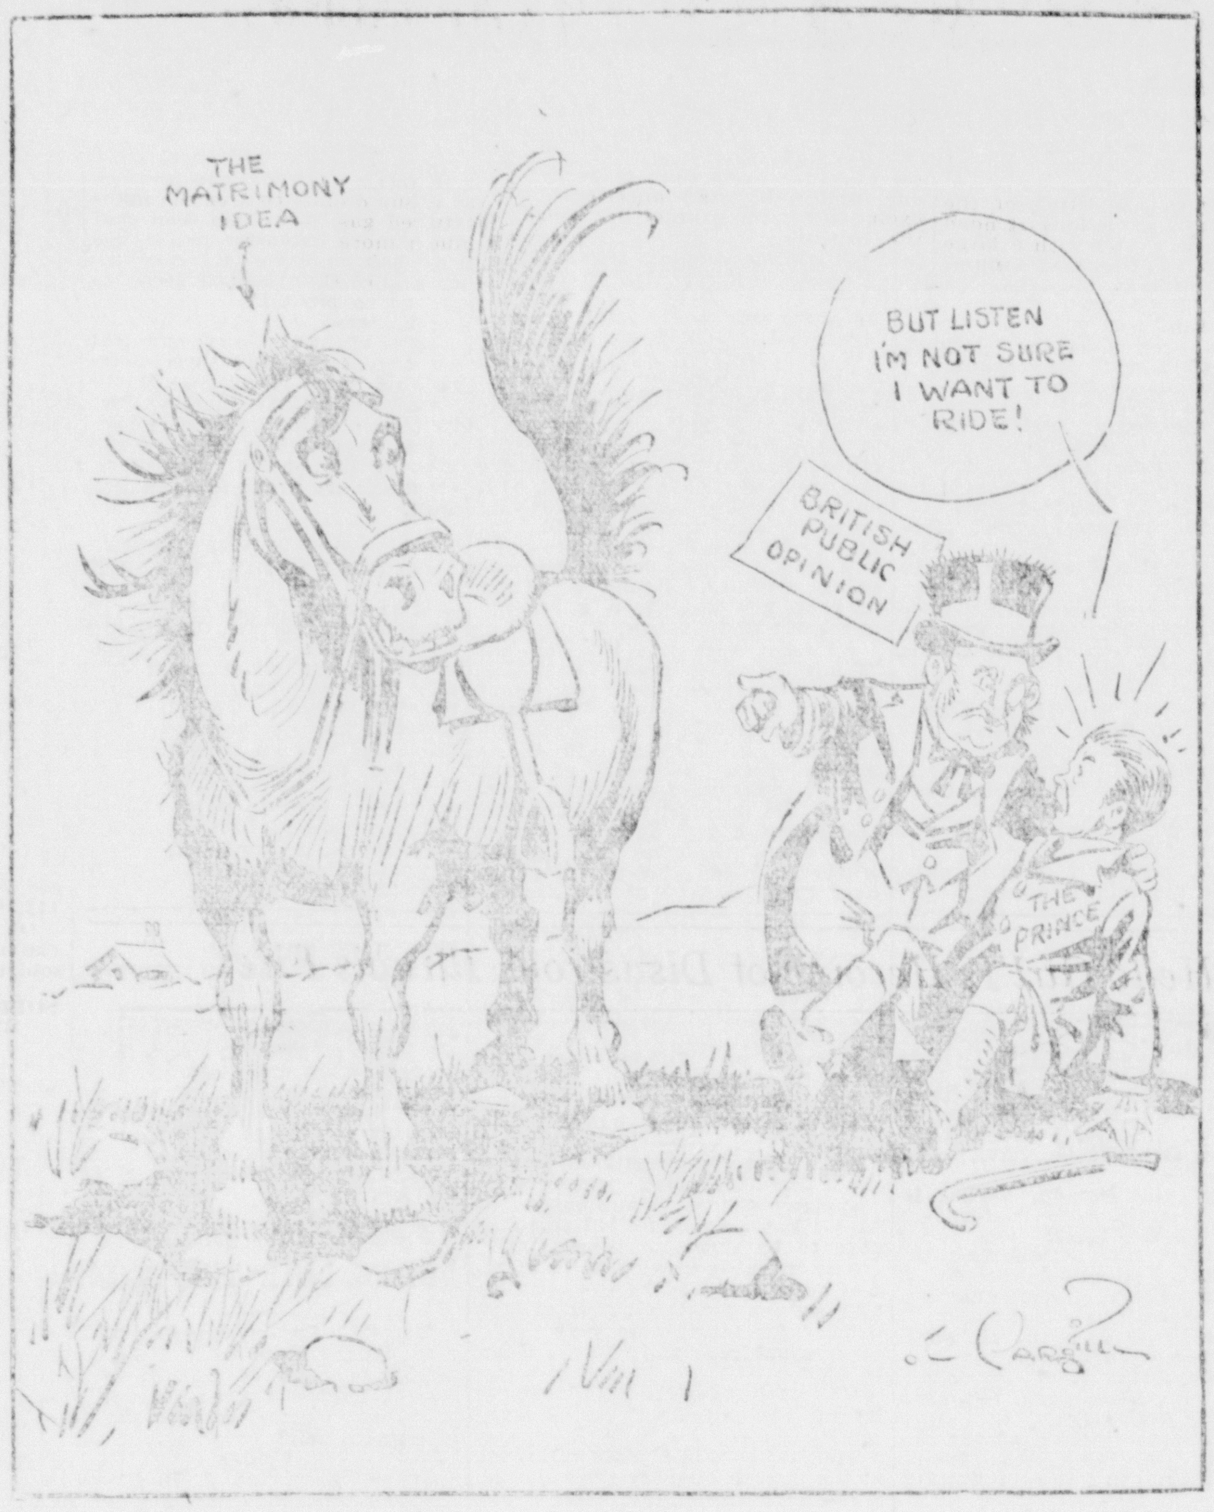
"Remember to make a great difference between companions and friends; for a very complaisant and agreeable companion may, and often does prove a very improper and very dangerous friend."

* * * * *

There is a Spanish proverb, "Tell me who you live with and I will tell you who you are."

Not without reason do people, in a great degree, form their opinion of you, upon that which they have of your friends.

Whether He Went To Or Not



ANDREW AND IMOGENE

By Roe Fulkerson

"Andrew," began Imogene, "have you heard anything about the Foibles, that big show at the Academy this week?"

"No," replied Andrew, "this is 'No-Gossip-Week' in my life. I haven't heard a terrible, horrible or frightful thing all week long. Go ahead and shock me."

"It is frighful, they tell me," returned Imogene. "Jessie said her daughter who went with a young man on Monday night, told her not to go as it was not fit for a decent person to sit through."

"When did she leave?"

"When did who leave?" asked Imogene.

"Jessie's daughter."

"Why, I did not know that she left."

"I see," laughed Andrew. "The biggest problem young people face these days is finding a place where they dare take their parents.

"They cannot take them to a musical burlesque show because the actors take off not only all the prominent plays, but also all the prominent clothes. Children have a dreadful time keeping their parents away from these shows after they have seen them.

"It is almost as bad in drama. With 'What Price Glory' teaching them to swear and 'Desire Under the Elms' teaching them sex stuff the poor young folks have a frightful time keeping their parents away from where they are apt to hear what would shock them. Children have to go to almost every show for fear their parents will drift into one they have not seen and be pained.

"It is the same way with modern novels. Children have an awful time finding a novel they are willing their parents should read. They keep most of their books locked up, for fear the old folks will start reading them before they can forbid it. Today's books are for young advanced thinkers and not for old people to get foolish ideas out of.

"I have heard of elderly people getting into moving pictures their children had not had time to see first, witnessing a lot of things no parent would ever see with the consent of a careful child. The danger is that parents get their well set minds upset and are apt to get into the unfortunate habit of going to them.

"The trouble the average child has watching over a parent in these days of reconstruction, synthetic gin and Charleston dancing, is almost enough to keep a child from wanting to have parents. Many think it would be better to be born in an orphan asylum and have adopted parents afterwards than to have the usual responsibility of them.

"Parents are so provincial and unsophisticated! Every child wants to keep the poor dears that way, if possible. It becomes a real task to explain things to them when they stumble onto a modern book, play or moving picture. It is often embarrassing to the thoughtful child."

"Bessie says her husband has tickets and they want us to go with them Friday night," answered Imogene.

"Me for it," said Andrew heartily. "I am old but anxious to be shocked. I never realize one of the blessings of having no child to chaperone me."

The Wise Sayings of Mrs. Solomon

By Helen Rowland

Sorrows of a Good Husband

My Daughter, the ways of a foolish husband are the delight of the newspapers, but the light of a Good Husband is hidden under a bushel of suspicion.

Now, there came unto me a Married Man of Babylon, who wept, saying: "Alas, what shall I do that I may have honor among men, and glory in the eyes of mine own wife?

"For, lo, I am not a stepper but a steady-going man and possess neither a wandering foot nor a roving fancy, nor eyes for any woman save my wife.

"Neither have I a hand-colored past, wherewith to satisfy her imagination; nor any besetting vice whereof she can 'reform' me.

"Yet what doth my rectitude profit me? For when I tell my Beloved the truth, she greeteth my word with scorn and suspicion and will not believe; and in her books I am written down 'Smooth Liar.'

"Behold, when I am detained at a conference or a lodge meeting, she greeteth me with utter laughter and accusations. Yet when I prove mine innocence, she is filled with disappointment, because the 'conference' was not a blonde, nor the lodge meeting a red haired manicure!

"Likewise, amongst my high-stepping friends and the men of mine office, I am known as a 'mollycoddle' and 'old Dobbin'; and amongst my wife's friends as 'dissembler' and 'hypocrite.' Yea Janus, the two-faced was not more suspected than I!

"Yet, I do not yearn for flirtation, and my dancing-days are over; man-hunters do not tempt me, and flappers bore me. I sigh not after wine-cellars, and golf is mine only passion. For, Business is my Deity—and my middle name is 'Home-James'!"

And lo, I advised him saying:

"Go to, my Son. Knowest thou not that a woman's craving for excitement must be satisfied? Yea, she must have something to lie awake and worry about at night!

"Lo, a foolish husband greeteth his wife's accusations with protests of virtue and good alibis; and a good husband is filled with pain and indignation at her suspicions.

"But a wise husband saith, 'Izzat So!' and permitteth her to think him guilty. And, behold, her imagination doeth the rest, and she is satisfied!

"For, verily, verily, no woman can be happy, unless she hath something to make her miserable, something to 'worry about,' somebody to 'reform,' something to be 'curious' about, and something to suffer over!

"And the way of a Good Husband is exceeding ticklish!"

Eat Better Food to Improve Health

In a report made by the United States public health service, Assistant Surgeon General White stated a lot of important truths. Here is one of them:

"There is less undernourishment now than ever before. People are getting better quality food, even if they are paying more for it." He added that "if higher priced foodstuffs keep the public well, the increase in cost is well worth while."

I have found at times that the high prices for food which have persisted since the world war have kept our people from eating the best qualities. Fortunately price does not always determine food value. Chicken pie does not begin to cost as much as terrapin but, of course, it will give just as much nourishment.

Every family should learn enough about food values to be able to choose intelligently in ordering for the table. I rejoice that the public schools are giving more and more attention to food as a factor in health. Lots of school children know all about protein, carbohydrates, fats, vitamines, minerals, calories and the food needs of the body. This is well.

If you permit your appetite and the clamorings of your palate to determine what you are to eat, I fear the result. If you live an unrestrained existence so far as eating is concerned, you are doomed. Fortunately, most mothers are watchful of their children and do not permit them to form harmful eating habits. While the children are within reach, certainly they are safe.

As I have observed it in the cities, it is the midday meal which requires reformation. A nut sundae and a thin sandwich do not make a meal. The same money may be expended in a real meal if you are taught what to order.

Milk—pure milk—is a high-priced article. But, at any price, milk is the cheapest of foods. It comes the nearest to being a "balanced" food and to most persons it is an acceptable food.

If it is not pure milk it is deadly. When I speak of pure milk, I refer to milk from supervised cows and sold under the restrictions of modern sanitary rules. Try to find a place where such milk is sold and make this the basis of your midday meal.

A soup of beans or peas, with whole wheat bread or graham crackers is another wholesome dish. Add to this and the glass of milk, a fresh vegetable, lettuce or fresh fruit, and you have an ideal lunch.

Don't eat a big meal in the middle of the day if you are a business man or woman and are to have dinner at night. It is quite different, of course, if the mid-day meal is the chief one of the day.

The January 9th issue of the Saturday Evening Post contains a special Willys-Overland section of eleven pages—the most impressive message ever published on the subject of Fine Motor Cars. Do not fail to read this epochal announcement.

SPEEDY SLEDS IN EUROPEAN SPORT

Tourists Flock to St. Moritz for the Toboggan, Ski and Other Sports

While winter vacationists in America are fleeing from snow and ice to Florida and California, Europe is making a general exodus to white-clad fairylands among the snows of the Alps, the Pyrenees and the Scandinavian peninsula. Heavy garments are being packed, and skis, skates and toboggans are being made ready for the sports carnivals that begin this month.

St. Moritz, the oldest and most famous of Europe's winter sports centers, is opening the season with a series of hockey matches, to be followed in January by the European ski jumping championship, says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

One must look closely on the map of Switzerland to find St. Moritz. It is another of those places whose fame has far outdistanced its growth in population. If your map is large enough, however, you will discover it in the eastern part of Switzerland, far down near Bernina Pass, one of the gateways into Italy. Most of the year it is a quiet little village of fewer than 3,000 persons. Its altitude, more than a mile above sea level, helps to make its climate severe. Frosts in summer are not unknown. In fact, the natives have a couplet describing the climate of St. Moritz, "nine months of winter and three months of cold."

Low temperatures, of course, do not interfere with winter sports, nor are they ever so extreme as to drive away those seeking "air cures." Mineral springs have given St. Moritz more or less of a year-round vogue as a health resort, but its uniform winter weather, with dry, cold, bright days and almost no thaws, has atracted to its rinks and sled-runs champions and enthusiasts of winter sports from all over the world. In winter its population is more than doubled, while the neighboring villages of Celerina, Campfer and Pontresina benefit by the overflow.

St. Moritz Dorf, or village, nestles in a sunny, well-sheltered nook on the north bank of St. Moritz lake a widening of the River Inn. The mountains protect it from severe winds. With the adjacent village of St. Moritz Bad, or Bath, St. Moritz forms the largest community in the Upper Engadine district. The little groups of hotels and chalets, with tall church spires watching over them, have a pleasing aspect seen from the many paths winding up the mountainsides. In back of every picture too, are the serrated peaks of the Bernina Alps, the bare rocks of precipices and the blue-stained surfaces of glaciers standing out sharply against the white wintel mantle.

In addition to catering to the tourist and invalid trade, the natives produce in their home shops fine wood carvings, furniture embroidery, pottery and pictures. The wood of the stone pine which grows in great profusion around the shores of the little lake, is especially suitable for carvings. American tourists are among the chief purchasers of the latter, perhaps because it is one of the few things on which there is no duty.

Before the days of the airplane and the automobile St. Moritz offered the world's fastest ride. Its famous Cresta Toboggan Run, which drops nearly 500 feet in three-quarters of a mile, has been traversed in 58.7 seconds, at speeds touching more than 70 miles an hour. It is still largely a track for experts, but there are other runs where beginners can find excitement aplenty while learning the fine points of the art. Although practically the same course has been used on the Cresta Run for the last 40 years, those who have experienced, season after season, the breathless thrill of flying down its ice-surfaced, snow-banked course agree that "age cannot wither, nor custom stale the infinite variety" of its excitations.

There are other outdoor sports of many kinds—ski jumping from dizzy heights ;ski-kjoring on the lake, when jockies ride on skis behind their horses; hockey; ice skating; hiking; curling matches; and trailing parties, where long strings of skiers are hitched to horse teams and go riding all over the landscape, chereing and shouting. The latter presents one of the most colorful sights of the resort.

In the crisp, bracing air, and amid strenuous sports the day pasess quickly. As the seetting sun reaches the saw-edged horizon the mountain tops are transformed from dazzling while to a thousand shades of prismatic glory. From the depths of the valley the blue shadows creep slowly up, until they finaly engulf each rosy-capped peak. Tired but merry groups of pleasure seekers make their way to their hotels and hospices, guided by the clear cold light of the stars and the yellow shafts the windows send sparkling over the frozen surface of the snow.

NATURAL GAS IS ROTARY SUBJECT

Walter Moore Gives the Service Talk; Prof. Wooten Speaks on Friendship

Rotary's first meeting of the New Year was held Friday at noon at the Gibraltar hotel with a large attendance of members and a number of guests present.

Walter G. Moore was in charge of the program, and his selection was an ideal combination of Rotary principles, with Prof. Shaw playing for the singsong which Henry McClanahan led, Prof. J. G. Wooten making a talk on friendship in Rotary, and Mr. Moore the service talk for the day on natural gas.

Will Clark had copies, for each member, of the Rotary classifications, including those locally filled, with the names of the members under the proper classifications.

Guests for the occasion included M. P. Cornelius of Clarksville, A. P. Miller of Sulphur Springs, L. R. Hoover of McKinney, Rotarian E. H. Bailey of Hugo, Ok., and E. R. Smith of Greenville, managers of the branch houses of the Paris Grocer company, as guests of Bob Lane, besides S. M. Gose Jr., of Wichita Falls, H. G. Piper and R. A. Biard of St. Louis, M. H. Rhine, Herman Coker, J. B. Strong, and Maude Neville of the Morning News.

Prof. Wooten's talk on the eighth article in the Rotary code of ethics was specially inspiring and was couched in the most eloquent lakguage. Friendship in Rotary, he said, is not to be sullied by any tint of commercialism! It is rather a refutation of the argument that today gives no time for true friendships. When friendship spreads a benign influence over all the world alike, then may we realize the ideal of brotherhood. We should make the most of the beauties and splendors of this world, for our little span here is part of our immortality and must not be excluded for the sake of heaven in the future.

We should do our duty here, and fulfill our destiny; we cannot mend the past, tomorrow is yet unborn, but the present is ours. Wipe the slate clean, smile and start afresh.

Walter Moore's talk was thoroughly interesting from every standpoint; he reminded the members of his prediction ten years ago of the then proposed idea of radio, and spoke of how far more wonderful the realization had proved. He referred again to the possibilities of the ether wave, and then of the present experiments for transmitting light and power by means of an aerial, and the enormous amount of sun and sea energy going to waste for lack of proper harnessing.

Man has subdued to his own uses one of the most potent of natural forces in piping natural gas. This, like other fuels, may be wasted or conserved for future generations. There is no replenishment of the supply, and if it is carelessly used, the source may not prove inexhaustible in the years to come. This is a very remote possibility, however, for the local supply is obtained from several different fields in Oklahoma and an adequate, even pressure is assured by means of regulators.

The gas is piped into the city at 250 pounds pressure, and "stepped down" to 15 pounds pressure for the belt line over the city, while five regulators along the line reduce the pressure to 4 ounces for the consumer's use. Fifty percent of the gas is wasted through carelessness, ignorance or inadequate fixtures. Natural gas costs a third less than the artificial gas, and the heat value double that of the manufactured gas, it will be seen that a much more extensive use of gas will probably not cost the consumer any more than he has been accustomed to paying.

The increased heat given by natural gas is especially economical in cooking, for a flame three-quarters of an inch high, barely touching the bottom of the cooking vessel, will cook the food just as thoroughly as if the pan were enveloped in flame. Observance of this and life caution will insure 100 per cent value for the gas used.

The Texas Power and Light company which contracted with the Lone Star Gas company for the distribution of natural gas, is at all times glad to assist or advise about gas problems, and render service to the consumer.

Toward the close of the meeting the guests were presented, and numerous expressions of appreciation given by Rotarians who had been remembered at the holiday time with gifts or messages from Rotary Friend X.

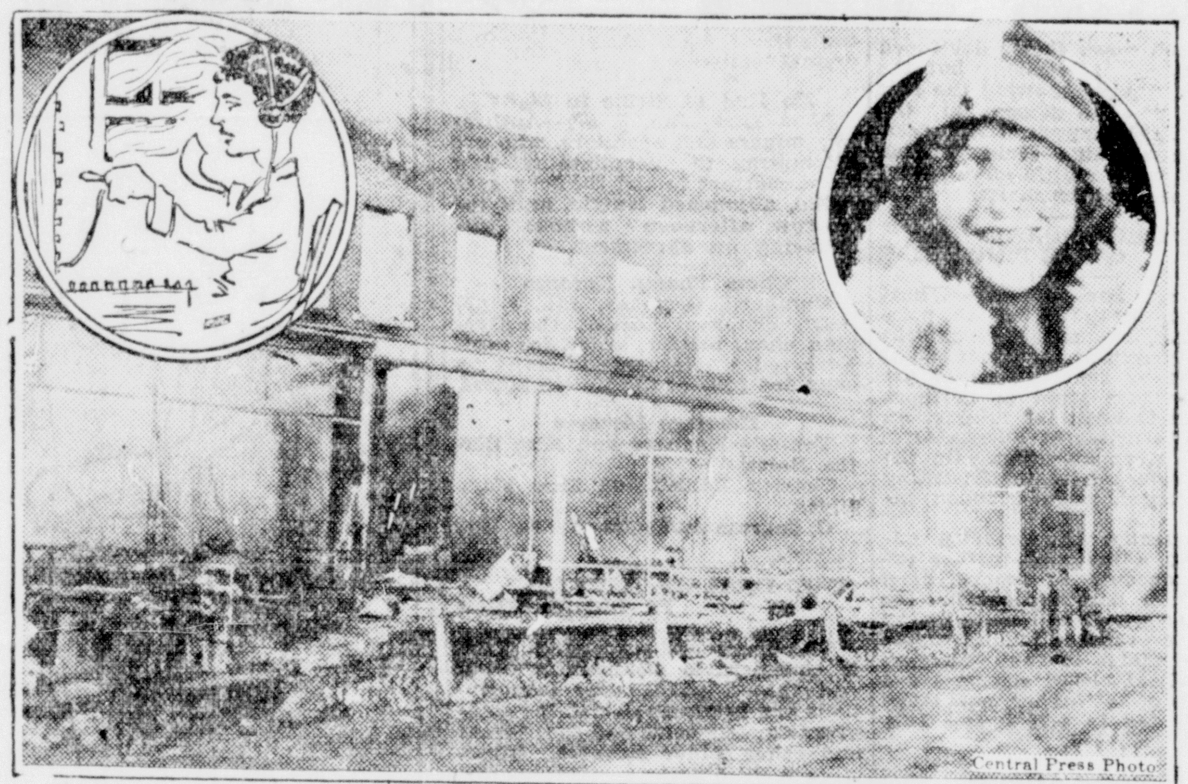
Hello Girl Is Heroine of Disastrous Illinois Fire



Central Press Photo

Carnegie and Vail hero medals are being sought for Mrs. Roy Ilgen, telephone operator who called the firemen, stuck to her post amid the flames, roused the town, appealed to neighboring cities for aid and prevented a panic when the business district of Orangeville, Ill., was destroyed by fire. She stayed at her call-board until it was necessary for firemen to rescue her from the burning exchange. A view of the blaze is shown. Inset is Mrs. Ilgen.

FORTY-ONE

Noble Harwood was in a reflective mood as he dressed for dinner(and he only stared absently at Burnham as the valet, anticipating his master's every move, handed him the necessary garment and accessories. Mary was in town—did her coming mean trouble? A desire to see her that he couldn't quite suppress disturbed him. Only curiosity, he told himself. Just the wish to know how much she had changed. After all, why shouldn't he go and see her if he wanted to, providing she was willing to let bygones be bygones? He had nothing against Mary; their temperaments clashed, that was all. She had not been an unfaithful wife, or a neglectful mate, but only a self-centered one. And exerybody is self-centered more or less. Why blame her? Now that he was free, he hoped she would be happy. There was no reason why they shouldn't be friends. Thus his thoughts ran.

He decided to attach a personal note to her invitation to the ball, importuning her to come.

"I am going to the club this evening," he announced when he met Laurel in the hallway and kissed her. "I have tickets for the play at the opera house tonight, perhaps Marion would like to go with you."

"I'll ask her." She turned away, peeved. Three consecutive evenings now.

Noble followed her, "I hope you don't mind my going out this evening, dear?"

Without turning, she replied. "Would it make any difference if I did mind?"

The sharpness of her retort annoyed him. "Very well, if you wish to be unpleasant about it."

Laurel paused and faced him. "This is the third straight evening you have gone out alone and come in when you pleased. I might mind less if I had the same liberty."

Noble's eyes narrowed, as she went on, explaining: "I mean I think that if you are going to spend so many of your evenings away from home—alone, you might give me sufficient notice to allow me to have some engagements of my own. Instead you announce your plans when you please and proceed to act upon them without considering me."

It was not the first time that she had rebuked him, but it was the first time that he had been stung by her outspokenness. Damn! Had he married another Mary Farr? He stood staring at her.

"Let's go in to dinner, dear." There was no resignation in her voice. She offered her arm. They went in stiffly.

"Any more news about the ball?" she asked, when they were seated.

Noble was resentful of her attempt to be amiable so soon after expressing her feelings about him; it was like being slapped by a person who didn't care whether it hurt or not. He answered her in a dull voice, "Nothing much. I've arranged to bring part of the Follies company playing in Chicago here by airplane to perform."

"Why Noble!" Her enthusiasm was genuinely aroused. "That will be wonderful! How long will it take them to get here?"

"About an hour and a half. If I can get three more of the five-passenger planes—I have two chartered, then we can have twenty-five of the company. The manager has promised to hurry up that performance of the show so they can leave the theater at ten-fifteen. Allowing fifteen minutes to get them to the Grant aviation field and in the planes, they can get here by about twelve-thirty and give their performance about one-thirty. They can go back when they please."

"Why, uh—Harry Yancey suggested it."

So Noble was going over his plans with Harry and telling her later, when he had decided what he was going to do. Harry Yancey! Harry Yancey! Harry Yancey! He always came first. Would she always be second to someone? Her feelings were expressed in her countenance.

"I sent another letter to Mr. Bel-Geddes today, urging him to accept my offer to design the decorations. I—"

"Was that one of Harry Yancey's ideas, too?" she asked maliciously.

Noble's salad fork paused in midair, and went back to his [illegible] as he read the expression in her eyes. Thereafter, until the dinner was completed, there was silence between them. Noble's only words were adressed to Louis.

"Please ask Burnham to put one of my sack suits and some linen in a bag," he said.

Laurel's eyes widened. What was he going to do? Where was he going? She arose, her heart pounding.

PETER'S ADVENTURES IN ANIMAL LAND

BY MRS FLORENCE SMITH VINCENT

THE SEAL HUNT

"If you can only keep on going long enough you are sure to reach the place you started for!" remarked Polar Bear wisely, and Black Bear, nodding his shaggy head, solemnly agreed with his new neighbor.

"And so," continued Polar, "there came that moment when I bobbed up for air, and that wind that rushed past told me what I so wanted to know—that I was near—very near—my prey. At this good news I felt little shivers run up and down my spine, and I am just as sure as can be that if it had not been soaking wet the fur upon my back would have stood up straight. As many times as I had gone a-hunting, I always grew excited just like that. There always is the chance, after all the trouble and time you take to corner your game, he may, at the very last second, find a way to escape and slip through your paws. So very quietly I lifted my head above the surface, not so far but that seal, if he waked up and caught sight of me, would think I was a fish.

"Wind had told the truth. I was right at the base of the rock. Another length or so and I would have whacked my head against it, and who knows, I might have hurt myself. Ah, ha! I was in luck! The ledge on which the seal had chosen to sun himself was in a cove. From it there was only one way to the open sea, and that was past me. Let the fellow try to make his getaway in that direction if he could. He had a hard task ahead of him. The ledge was very narrow, but if he were to leave it the seal would have to take to the land. And well I knew I could beat him at any race of that sort.

"Slowly, carefully I climbed up that rock, and it was so steep and slippery that I was grateful then, if I had never been before, for the fur pads upon the bottom of my feet that helped me to hang on to the icy rock. I had gotten my front feet on the ledge when the seal opened his eyes. It didn't take him long to wake up then, but it was too late. He was mine, and he knew it. He gave a despairing look at the sea, then turned and flopped landward, crying for help. But no help came. I was the only creature that heard, and I was no friend. I did feel sorry for him, though, he was so wholly in my power, and perhaps afraid my wife would say if I came back empty-handed I should have let him go. But I didn't. Oh how I wish I had!"

Scoutmaster L. W. Deweese and troop 11 went to Camp Clark Friday night for supper, and after games and contests, enjoyed popping corn in the big fireplace.

Regular meeting on Sunday afternoon will be held at 2 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, and all boys who have passed their twelfth birthday are invited to come and join one of the troops.

AFFIRMED THE PLEA OF HOMESTEAD EXEMPTION

The court of civil appeals at Texarkana has handed down an opinion affirming the action of the district court of Lamar county in the case of the Commercial Farm Credit Association et al vs D. S. Sales et al on appeal.

The plaintiff sued the defendant D. S. Sales for a loan on his farm in the southwest part of the county and on trial of the case the plea of homestead exemption was set up in defense.

The lower court sustained the plea of homestead exemption but rendered a personal judgment against the defendant. The amount of the claim together with interest and attorney's fees was about $18,500.

On account of the homestead claim set up the land cannot be sold to satisfy the judgment.

GIANT MOGUL IS SAID TO WANT EDDIE ROUSCH

New York, Jan. 8, (AP)—John McGraw's return to his desk in the New York Giants' offices after a hurried trip to his Florida domain, has resurrected the rumor that Eddie Rousch will come from Cincinnati to play center field for New York and that Bill Terry will play first base for the Reds.

McGraw's patronage of the fast express trains in the past few weeks indicates that the trade winds are somewhat more than zephyrs. It is well known that there are only two center fielders in the National league at all acceptable to McGraw—Max Carey of the Pittsburgh Pirates and Rousch. Carey, of course, is out of the question as a trade prospect after his remarkable performances in the last campaign.

FLOWERS AND GREB TO FIGHT FOR TITLE

New York, Jan. 8, (AP)—Tiger Flowers, Atlanta negro, and Harry Greb of Pittsburgh, the champion, will meet in a middleweight title match in this city February 26, so far as the state athletic commission is concerned.

At the commission meeting on Tuesday a suggestion was made that Flowers face Dave Shade of California in an elimination contest. The commission already has accepted the negro's challenge and forfeit money for the Greb battle.

Chairman Farley explains that there has been no attempt to draw the color line. Greb requested more time before meeting Flowers and the commission ventured the Shade suggestion.

SOCCER IS DOOMED AS A SCHOOL SPORT

London, Jan. 8, (AP)—One elementary school after another in England is deserting association football for rugby because rugby remains strictly amateur. The situation has reached such a stage that the headmasters who are seeking means of saving "soccer" as a school sport realize that have a difficult task before them.

It is pointed out by the headmasters and others that association football has many fine qualities, and that it would be a pity to turn it over entirely to professionals.

Delfos Cotton Seed Pays Big Dividends

Delfos Cotton, already proved to be the best money making cotton crop all over the South, will be raised more extensively in Lamar county this year.

R. F. Evans, representative of the Holman Seed Co., Inc., of Memphis has just appointed P. K. Wallace of this city agent for Delfos. Mr. Wallace planted Delfos seed last year and is very enthusiastic over the grade of lint produced.

The seed are now on display at F. O. Reed's cotton office and at each of the banks. Farmers who are interested in a greater yield of cotton that will demand a good price will find it to their advantage to investigate the record set by Delfos.

Nine carloads of this seed have been shipped into Choctaw, McCurtain and Bryan counties already as a result of the excellent yield during 1925.

Don't fail to investigate the merits of Delfos. See the seed at any bank. If interested in planting Delfos seed see P. K. Wallace Saturday at F. O. Reed's cotton office.—Adv.

New oYrk, Jan. 8, (AP)—Distinctly better trade advices from Liverpool and Manchester were followed by a very steady opening in the cotton market today.

First prices were 6 to 17 points higher on covering and fresh buyinug, March selling up to 20.08 and July to 18.97. These figures evidently attracted a good deal of realizing by recent buyers however, while there also was a good deal of selling here to undo old straddles betwen New York and Liverpool at the increase in difference.

Cable advices received in the trade reported a better business in cotton goods at Manchester and an increased spot demand from spinners and exporters in Liverpool.

Realizing attracted by the opening advance continued throughout the morning. The unsettling effect of the advance on the New York Federal reserve rate as reflected by the action of the stock market apparently was responsible for heavy Wall Street selling of cotton in liquidation of old long accounts. Commission house realizing and liquidation also developed on the decline.

No fresh news factor developed in the early afternoon but the week-end figures showing the first decrease of the season in the world's visible supply of American cotton, attracting some bullish comment with a little more covering by near months shorts.

WHEAT CONDITIONS CAUSE PRICE RISE

Chicago, Jan. 8, (AP)—Wheat scored an early upturn in price here today, influenced by unlooked for strength of Liverpool quotations and by reports that 40 per cent of wheat yield in northern Argentina is unfit for milling. An advance in prices at Buenos Aires also was given attention. On the rise of values here, profit-taking sales enlarged, and a reaction ensued.

Subsequently, the market advanced to a material further extent on account of reports of a much better domestic demand for red winter wheat and also because of talk of probable reduced unofficial estimates of the Canadian crop. Wheat closed strong, 1 3-8 to 2½ cents net higher; new style, May 1.78 3-8 to 1.78¾ and July 1.53½ to 1.53 5-8.

CATTLE TRADE STEADY HOGS LITTLE HIGHER

Ft. Worth, Jan. 8, (AP)—Friday's cattle trade was good, taking about everything in the yards at fully steady prices—calves excepted. South Texas grass cattle top $6.75; desirable feeder steers $8.

Receipts: Cattle 3000, cavles 300. Hogs 10 to 15c higher. Best butchers top $12.55 by a small packer; other butcher hogs $12.50.

MARKETS AT A GLANCE

New York—Stocks heavy; prices decline 3 to 8 points.

Cotton steady; trade buying.

Sugar lower; Cuban selling.

Coffee easier; disappointing spot demand.

Chicago — Wheat firm; good mill demand.

Corn higher; better cash demand.

Cattle dull and lower.

Hogs higher; packers inactive.

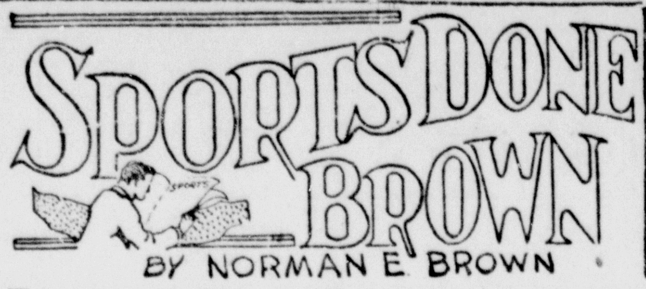
"The People's Friend"



BY NORMAN E BROWN

The announcement by the United States Lawn Tennis association of its annual rankings is always of considerable interest.

This year finds Bill Tilden again topping the list as No. 1. This is the sixth time that Tilden has headed the "Big Ten" and this latest recognition places him within two years of the great record set by Bill Larned, who was so honored eight years. Larned and Tilden reign supreme now in the matter of ranking.

Bill Johnston, a veteran, by all the laws of sport, when Bill Hilden began his reign, and a leader in the sport since 1913, replaces the still young Vincent Richards as No. 2. Johnston's two victories over Richards in their battle for the honor of sharing the Davis cup singles play with Tilden, and then Johnston's play in the cup matches gave him a clear claim to this position.

Richards and R. Norris Williams, the other member of the Davis cup team, are ranked third and fourth respectively.

This is the fifth year that Richards has been listed in the first ten. He reached the highest peak of his career to date when he was placed No. 2 in the 1924 rankings. This is the eleventh year Williams has been "among 'em." He topped the list in 1916.

The inclusion of Manuel Alonzo as No. 5, T. Harada as No. 7 and Brian I. C. Norton as No. 9 is interesting. Alonzo, a Spaniard, was captain of Spain's Davis cup team. He is now residing in this country, however, and therefore is included for record purposes. His position indicates the opinion the ranking committee holds regarding his ability.

Harada, a Japanese and member of Japan's Davis cup team, is a resident of Boston. Norton drew international attention as a member of South Africa's tennis team. He is living in St. Louis.

Some melancholy soul asks; "Where have all our great colored fighters gone?" That's easy. To the same place that swallowed up the white ones, wherever that is.

Battling Siki earned something over $100,000 through his brief career in the ring. And he left an estate of just $600, according to papers filed by his widow.

Which proves several things perhaps. But above all others is the fact that when $100,000 is thrust on someone who isn't mentally fitted to stand the strain that money will be wasted.

Danny Frush, who was once press-agented into a match with Johnny Kilbane, lost a bout to one Bert McCarthy on a foul in Australia the other day. Danny has lost a bout in nearly every country now.

SWIFT COMPANY NET EARNINGS TOTAL $15,379,152

Chicago, Jan. 8, (AP)—Swift & Co., Chicago packers, had net earnings after interest and depreciation of $15,379,152.04 on sales exceeding $875,000,000, said the annual statement today.
